Rebecca Tillemans has long been inspired by the power displayed by great leaders to bring about positive, monumental change. That inspiration and awe drove her to begin her study of extraordinary leadership. She excels at bringing academic concepts to life using contemporary and relevant story-based examples.

Her depth of experience and her decisive confidence allow her to unveil connections and draw insights into the nuances of leadership, carving a path for transformation. Through her pLink Leadership® coaching, training, and facilitating, Rebecca supports leaders in finding the power of their individual leadership styles through tapping into their core values and unique strengths.

Her clients, who range from rising to senior leaders, value her keen ability to synthesize complex data quickly and compassionately. They appreciate her down-to-earth approach and her gift for creating safe spaces for them to crystallize their own self-trust and resolve.

A former wilderness therapy instructor, Rebecca always enjoys getting outside in search of the awe and connection that nature reliably delivers. Rebecca makes her home in Columbia, Maryland, with her daughter, son, and husband.
